State scoring breakdown

The Center for American Progress and Common Justice developed the State Victim Compensation Statute Rubric as a common framework through which survivors, advocates, legislators, administrators, and the public can better understand gaps and opportunities for improvement in state victim compensation law. This document provides the complete breakdown of how Wyoming scored in the State Victim Compensation Statute Rubric. For each scoring criteria, the raw score and explanation is given based on existing statute and/or administrative code. States are evaluated based on 30 separate criteria that are grouped into four categories. The raw score and the weighted score—calculated by applying the category multiplier, a number between 1 and 2 determined based on insights gathered from survivor focus groups—are presented at the top of each category. The rubric’s categories and corresponding multipliers are, in order of appearance: awareness and accessibility (x1.25), adequate compensation (x1), eligibility barriers (x1.75), and experience with the process (x1.5). This rubric is intended to serve as a tool for those seeking to reform victim compensation statute in Wyoming and to ultimately ensure their victim compensation program better serves all survivors of violence.

Wyoming

Total score: 35.75/57.25

Awareness and accessibility

States are evaluated based on language accessibility, procedures for informing survivors of their right to apply for victim compensation, and time requirements for reporting harm or applying for compensation.

Weighted score: 6.88/7.5

Multiplier: 1.25

Raw score: 5.5/6

Category	Points Awarded For	Evaluation	Explanation
Inform victim requirement	It is important that state statute, at a bare minimum, requires responding law enforcement officers, medical providers, or the district or state attorneys general interacting with survivors of violence to proactively inform survivors of the availability of victim compensation. States receive the maximum of 1 point if, in statute pertaining to victim compensation or in the state's victims' bill of rights, there is an active requirement that the responsible law enforcement agency, medical provider, district attorney, or state's attorney must inform victims or survivors of the availability of victim compensation. States receive 0 points if there is no such active requirement to inform victims or survivors of the availability of victim compensation. In cases where state statute or the state's victims' bill of rights indicates that victims and survivors of victims have a right to be informed of victim compensation but fails to designate who is responsible for informing them about victim compensation, states receive 0 points.	1/1	Wyoming Statute § 1-40-115 states, "Each law enforcement and prosecuting agency, and any victim witness program or family violence advocate funded in whole or in part with state or federal funds, shall exercise reasonable care to insure that victims of crimes are informed of the existence of the state program of compensation."

Category	Points Awarded For	Evaluation	Explanation
Language accessibility	It is important that survivors do not face unnecessary language barriers when applying for victim compensation, which may make applying for this financial relief inaccessible to them. States should make application materials available in a variety of languages that reflect the needs of their population. States receive the maximum of 1 point if application materials are available on the administering agency's official website in all languages that at least 5 percent of all households in the state speak at home. States receive 0 points if application materials are not available in at least one language spoken by more than 5 percent of the state's households.	1/1	According to the U.S. Census Bureau, 5 percent of households in Wyoming speak Spanish at home. Wyoming's Victim Services website has applications for victim compensation available in English and Spanish. Wyoming therefore receives 1 point for this category.
Time limits: Reporting harm to law enforcement	Immediately following their victimization, survivors may not know about compensation or may not have the emotional capacity to go through an arduous application process. States should eliminate time limits for reporting violence and/or applying for victim compensation, which can work against the interest of healing. States receive the maximum of 2 points if there is no statutorily defined limitation on when survivors can report their harm to proper authorities to still be eligible to receive a victim compensation award. States receive 1 point if, in statute, victims are required to have reported their victimization to the proper authorities within a specified timeframe to be eligible to receive a victim compensation award but the state will make an exception to this requirement under a "good cause" clause or similar exception. States receive 0 points if, in statute, victims are required to have reported their victimization to the proper authorities within a specified timeframe to be eligible to receive a victim compensation award and there is no statutorily defined waiver or exception to this rule. States that require victims to have reported their victimization to the proper authorities within a specified timeframe to be eligible to receive a victim compensation award but also codify specific exceptions – including but not limited to being a victim of sexual assault or human trafficking and being a minor (under the age of 18) at the time of victimization – receive an additional 0.5 points.	2/2	Wyoming Statute § 1-40-106(iv) states no compensation award shall be made unless "the appropriate law enforcement authorities were notified of the criminal act allegedly causing the injury to or death of the victim as soon as practical under the circumstance after perpetration of the offense." As Wyoming does not establish a time limit for when a report must be made for law enforcement and considers extenuating circumstances, Wyoming receives 2 points for this category.

Time limits: Applying for victim compensation	Immediately following their victimization, survivors may not know about compensation or may not have the emotional capacity to go through an arduous application process. States should eliminate time limits for reporting violence and/or applying for victim compensation, which can work against the interest of healing. States receive the maximum of 2 points if, in statute, no limitation is placed on when victims can apply for compensation following their incident of harm to still be eligible to receive an award. States receive 1 point if, in statute, a limitation is placed on when victims can apply for compensation following their incident of harm to still be eligible to receive an award but will make exceptions to this requirement under a “good cause” clause or similar exception. States receive 0 points if, in statute, a limitation is placed on when victims can apply for compensation following their harm and still be eligible to receive an award, and there is no exception made to this rule. States that require victims to file an application for a victim compensation award within a specified timeframe from the time of their harm but also codify specific exceptions – including but not limited to being a victim of sexual assault or human trafficking and being a minor (under the age of 18) at the time of victimization – receive an additional 0.5 points.	1.5/2	Wyoming Statute § 1-40-106(v) states no compensation award shall be made unless “the application for compensation is filed with the division within one (1) year after the date of the injury to or death of the victim, or within any extension of time the division allows for good cause shown.” Furthermore, according to Chapter 3 of the Administrative Rules of Division of Victim Services, Office of the Attorney General, section 4(b)(A), “Good cause in determining whether a victim has satisfied the requirement to report a crime to law enforcement, the Division may consider the victims age, physical condition and psychological state, and any compelling health or safety reason that would jeopardize the well being of the victim. The Division may waive the report to law enforcement or the 1 year filing date if good cause is shown.” Additionally, W.S. § 6-2-709, states, “Victims of human trafficking are entitled to restitution and forms of compensation under the Crime Victims Compensation Act.” As Wyoming establishes a time limit for a victim to apply for an award but will waive this requirement for good cause shown or for specific victim circumstances, Wyoming receives 1.5 points for this category.

Adequate compensation

States are evaluated based on the explicit inclusion of expense categories survivors encounter over the course of their healing, as well as having adequate compensation caps to meet survivors' needs.

Weighted score: 9/14

Multiplier: 1

Raw score: 9/14

Category	Points Awarded For	Evaluation	Explanation
Eligible expenses	As almost all awards are given to survivors through reimbursement or payments to vendors, states should make explicitly clear through statute, regulation, and publicly available documents which expenses will and will not be covered and make a wide range of expenses eligible to give survivors flexibility in the support they receive.
	States receive 1 point for each expense category explicitly included in either state statute or another publicly available resource, such as an online brochure produced by the state administering agency.
	States receive 0 points for each expense category that is not explicitly included in either state statute or a publicly available resource.
	Crime scene cleanup	1/1	Crime scene cleanup is listed as an eligible expense by the Wyoming Victim Services , capped at $2,500.
	Replacement for property lost, damaged as a result of harm, or confiscated for the purpose of evidence collection	1/1	Replacement of clothing and bedding is covered as an eligible expense under Wyoming Admin. Code § 015.0012.3.02152001 .
	Relocation expenses	1/1	Relocation expenses are explicitly listed as an eligible expense by the Division of Victim Services' Compensation Guidelines , capped at $1,200.
	Future economic support or loss of support for dependents	1/1	Loss of support is listed as an eligible expense under Wyoming Admin. Code § 015.0012.3.02152001 .
	Security improvements	0/1	Security improvements are not explicitly listed as an eligible expense under Wyoming Admin. Code § 015.0012.3.02152001 .
	Travel	1/1	Mileage to and from doctor's appointments is listed as an eligible expense by the Wyoming Victim Services .
	Bereavement leave	1/1	Bereavement leave is explicitly listed as covered under loss of earnings by the Division of Victim Services' Compensation Guidelines , capped at 10 days.

	Nontraditional healing modalities	1/1	"Services rendered in accordance with any method of healing recognized by the law of this state" is covered as an eligible expense by the definition of "medical expenses" under Wyoming Statute § 1-40-102(vi) .
	Replacement services/child care	1/1	"Loss of support to the dependents of the victim to include home maintenance and child care" is covered as an eligible expense by the definition of "economic loss" under Wyoming Statute § 1-40-102(v) .
	Legal fees, including fees related to compensation process (applications, claims, appeals, etc.)	0/1	Legal fees are not explicitly listed as an eligible expense under Wyoming Admin. Code § 015.0012.3.02152001 .
	Accessibility modifications	1/1	Under W.S. § 1-40-109(e) , the division may, in the case of catastrophic injury, make an additional award of up to $10,000 for "special medical needs and any other special assistance needed as a result of the injury."
Maximum allowable compensation	While not every incident of harm and its corresponding expenses will necessitate a maximum compensation award, the amount of victim compensation available to survivors is often not enough to meet their financial needs. States should ensure their compensation caps are aligned with the full extent of need. States receive the maximum of 2 points if the statutorily defined maximum compensation limit for all victims is equal to or above the estimated average cost of harm per victim of robbery in the state, after adjusting for cost of living. States receive 1 point if the maximum compensation limit is equal to or above the estimated average cost of harm per victim of robbery in the state, after adjusting for cost of living, but only under the condition that the victim has suffered a "permanent" or "catastrophic" injury. States receive 0 points if, under no condition, the statutorily defined maximum compensation limit, after adjusting for the cost of living, meets or exceeds the estimated average cost of harm per victim of robbery in the state.	0/2	Wyoming Statute § 1-40-109 states that the limit for a victim compensation award for all victims is $15,000 unless in the case of catastrophic injury, in which the maximum award is $25,000. Adjusted for the cost of living in Wyoming, this is equivalent to $27,518.49. The estimated average cost of harm per victim of robbery, adjusted for the cost of living in Wyoming, is $53,242.38. As the maximum compensation award is below this estimate, Wyoming receives 0 points for this category.
Maximum allowable compensation for funeral and burial expenses	Due to the costliness and gravity of laying a loved one to rest, the sub-cap for funeral and burial expenses is considered individually. States receive the maximum of 1 point if, after adjusting for the cost of living, the statutorily defined maximum compensation limit for expenses related to funeral or burial services meets or exceeds the estimated 2023 median cost of burial with a vault. States receive 0 points if the statutorily defined maximum compensation limit for expenses related to funeral or burial services is below the estimated 2023 median cost of burial with a vault, after adjusting for the cost of living.	0/1	The expense cap for funeral and burial expenses is $7,500, according to the Wyoming Victim Services . Adjusted for the cost of living in Wyoming, this is equivalent to $8,255.55. The 2023 estimated cost of a funeral with a vault, adjusted for the cost of living in Wyoming, is $9,080.26. Wyoming therefore receives 0 points for this category.

Eligibility barriers

States are evaluated based on the removal of harmful and restrictive policies, which reinforce existing inequities and penalize those at the margins.

Weighted score: 18.38/29.75

Raw score: 10.5/17

Category	Points Awarded For	Evaluation	Explanation
Mandatory police reporting	Given that many survivors are uncomfortable dealing with law enforcement and the subjective, often biased nature of police reporting, states should not require survivors to report their victimization to law enforcement to be eligible to receive victim compensation and instead accept documentation from agencies not affiliated with the criminal legal system. States receive a maximum of 2 points if, in statute, victims are permitted to report their harm to entities not affiliated with the criminal legal system or a government agency – such as medical, mental health, or victim service providers – to demonstrate they have been a victim of violence. States receive 1 point if, in statute, victims are required to report their harm to law enforcement to demonstrate they have been a victim of violence but provide statutory exceptions due to good cause shown. States receive 0 points if, in statute, victims are required to report their harm to law enforcement and the state does not codify a good cause waiver to this requirement. States that require victims and survivors of victims to report their harm to police but also codify specific exceptions – including but not limited to being a victim of sexual assault or human trafficking and being a minor (under the age of 18) at the time of victimization – receive an additional 0.5 points.	1/2	W.S. § 1-40-106(iv) states no compensation award shall be made unless “the appropriate law enforcement authorities were notified of the criminal act allegedly causing the injury to or death of the victim as soon as practical under the circumstance after perpetration of the offense.” Furthermore, according to Chapter 3 of the Administrative Rules of Division of Victim Services, Office of the Attorney General, section 4(b)(A), “Good cause in determining whether a victim has satisfied the requirement to report a crime to law enforcement, the Division may consider the victims age, physical condition and psychological state, and any compelling health or safety reason that would jeopardize the well being of the victim. The Division may waive the report to law enforcement or the 1 year filing date if good cause is shown.” As Wyoming establishes a requirement for victims to report their harm to law enforcement but will waive this requirement for good cause shown, Wyoming receives 1 point for this category.

Police cooperation	Victim compensation application review processes are made less racially equitable by requiring and unnecessarily relying on the subjectivity of law enforcement's reports regarding victim cooperation. States should not assess victims' cooperativeness with law enforcement when making determinations on victim compensation claims. States receive a maximum of 2 points if, in statute, they do not make victim compensation eligibility contingent on the victim and/or applicant proving they have cooperated with law enforcement investigating their harm. States receive 1 point if, in statute, they make eligibility contingent on the victim and/or applicant proving that they have cooperated with law enforcement, but they also codify "good cause" or "reasonableness" exceptions to waive this requirement. States receive 0 points if, in statute, claimants are required to demonstrate that they have cooperated with law enforcement to be eligible to receive an award and do not include a "good cause" exception. States that do require cooperation with law enforcement to be eligible, but also codify any specific exceptions, including but not limited to, being a victim of sexual assault or human trafficking and being a minor (under the age of 18) at the time of victimization, receive an additional 0.5 points.	1.5/2	Wyoming Statute § 1-40-106(iv) states no compensation award shall be made unless "the claimant cooperates with appropriate law enforcement authorities with respect to the crime for which compensation is sought." Wyoming Admin. Code § 015.0012.3.02152001 further stipulates, "In determining whether a victim reasonably cooperated with law enforcement the Division may consider the victims age, physical condition and psychological state and any compelling health and safety reasons that would jeopardize the well-being of the victim." This also includes if sexual assault victims undergo a sexual assault forensic exam. Because Wyoming requires victims to cooperate with law enforcement but waives this requirement for good cause or for specific victim circumstances, Wyoming receives 1.5 points for this category.
Contributory conduct: Reduction or denial for victim	Contributory conduct policies deny or reduce the amount of victim compensation someone can receive based on the victim's alleged role in their own harm. These policies perpetuate the false narrative that victims and survivors must be "innocent" or "perfect" to receive support and should be eliminated. States should remove this subjectively determined barrier to access. States receive the maximum of 2 points if, in statute, the state does not include provisions to deny or reduce victim compensation due to the victim's alleged conduct in the event leading up to their harm. States receive 0.5 points if, in statute, the state includes a provision to deny or reduce a victim compensation award based on the victim's alleged conduct but waives this consideration under specified mitigating circumstances, including but not limited to being a victim of sexual assault or human trafficking and being a minor (under the age of 18) at the time of victimization. State receives 0 points for this category if, in statute, the state includes a provision to deny or reduce a victim compensation award based on the victim's alleged conduct and does not codify any waivers under specified mitigating circumstances.	0.5/2	W.S. § 1-40-110(b)(i) states that a victim compensation award may be reduce or denied based on "all circumstances surrounding the victim's conduct determined to be relevant which directly contributed to the victim's injury or death." Furthermore, the Division of Victim Services' Compensation Guidelines states, "The Director has discretion to adjust or waive reduction percentages recommended by Claims Analysts. Certain contributory factors shall not be considered in Domestic Violence, Sexual Assault, or when the victim is a minor child." As Wyoming considers contributory conduct in the reduction or denial of an award but not for victims with specific circumstances, Wyoming receives 0.5 points for this category.

Contributory conduct: Reduction or denial for survivors of victim	When a loved one is lost to violence, survivors of the victim must do the difficult work of putting them to rest and rebuilding their lives after loss. They should not be punished based on a subjective determination that the victim's actions contributed to their death. State receives the maximum of 1 point if, in statute, in cases of applications made by survivors of victims, the conduct of the victim is not considered. Points are awarded if this is the case for any type of compensation. For example, a state may choose not to consider contributory conduct in cases where survivors of victims apply for burial or counseling expenses. States that do not include provisions to deny or reduce victim compensation based on contributory conduct also receive 1 point for this category. States receive 0 points if, in statute, no exceptions are made for survivors of victims when considering contributory conduct of the victim.	1/1	According to the Division of Victim Services' Compensation Guidelines, "Contributory conduct is not considered on homicide claims," meaning survivors of victims would not have an award reduced or denied on the basis of contributory conduct. Wyoming therefore receives 1 point for this category.
Contributory conduct: Consideration of gang affiliation	The practice of labeling a person as being affiliated with a gang or having participated in gang-related activities is fraught with misinformation and racial profiling. Perceived gang affiliation should not be used to withhold critical support from a victim of violence. States receive the maximum of 1 point if, in statute, gang affiliation or association is not mentioned as a factor for consideration in the approval, denial, or reduction of victim compensation. States that do not include provisions to deny or reduce victim compensation based on contributory conduct also receive 1 point for this category. States receive 0 points for this category if, in statute or regulations, a victim or claimant's association or affiliation with a gang can be considered in the approval, denial, or reduction of their victim compensation award.	1/1	As there is no specific mention of gang affiliation or association included in Wyoming Statute § 1-40-110(b)(i) to be considered as contributory conduct, Wyoming receives 1 point for this category.
Contributory conduct: Consideration of illicit drug or alcohol involvement or use	States receive 1 point if, in statute or regulations, involvement with or use of illicit drugs is not mentioned as a potential factor in the approval, denial, or reduction of victim compensation. States which do not include provisions to deny or reduce victim compensation based on contributory conduct also receive 1 point for this category. States receive 0 points for this category if, in statute or regulations, a victim or claimant's involvement with or use of illicit drugs can be considered in the approval, denial, or reduction of their victim compensation award.	1/1	As no specific mention of drug/alcohol use is included in Wyoming Statute § 1-40-110(b)(i) to be considered as contributory conduct, Wyoming receives 1 point for this category.

Conviction status or history	Having a conviction history does not prevent someone from becoming a victim of violence, nor does it make someone less deserving of support. Conviction histories should not be used to withhold critical support from a victim of violence. States receive the maximum 2 points if, in statute, there is either: 1) no explicit language that bars a victim or claimant from applying for or receiving a victim compensation award; or 2) an explicit inclusion that claimants cannot be denied compensation or have their compensation reduced based on the applicant's or victim's arrest or conviction history (pre- or post-victimization, probation or parole status, or due to outstanding fines and fees). States receive 0.5 points if, in statute, claimants can be denied compensation based on the victim's arrest or conviction history, but the state also codifies specific waivers to this rule under mitigating circumstances, including but not limited to being a victim of sexual assault or human trafficking and being a minor (under the age of 18) at the time of victimization. States receive 0 points if, in statute, a claimant can be denied compensation or have their compensation reduced based on the applicant's or victim's arrest or conviction history and the state does not codify exceptions to this rule.	0/2	Wyoming Statute § 1-40-106(c) states, "Any person who perpetrates any criminal act on the person of another or who is convicted of a felony after applying to the division for compensation is not eligible or entitled to receive compensation under this act." Wyoming therefore receives 0 points for this category.
Incarceration status or history	Denying incarcerated people compensation further exacerbates cycles of trauma and disenfranchisement, which victim compensation programs are intended to interrupt. Incarcerated people should be permitted to apply for and receive victim compensation. State receives the maximum 2 points if, in statute, there is either: 1) no explicit language that a victim or claimant currently incarcerated is barred from applying for or receiving a victim compensation award; or 2) there is a specific inclusion that a claimant cannot be denied compensation based on their incarceration status or if the harm on which the claim is based occurred while the victim was incarcerated. States receive 0.5 points if, in statute, the state codifies specific waivers to this rule under mitigating circumstances, including but not limited to being a victim of sexual assault or human trafficking and being a minor (under the age of 18) at the time of victimization. States receive 0 points for this category if, in statute or regulations, a claimant can be denied or receive reduced victim compensation based on being incarcerated or if the harm on which the claim is based occurred while the victim was incarcerated.	2/2	As no specific exclusions for incarcerated persons exist in statute under Wyoming Statute § 1-40-106, Wyoming receives 2 points for this category.

Category	Points Awarded For	Evaluation	Explanation
Eligibility for survivors of victims: Relationship definition	Many victim compensation programs limit who can access financial relief based on their relationship to a victim or a survivor. It is important that victim compensation programs recognize the impact of violence on witnesses and loved ones and that the state broadly defines who is considered a victim's loved one. States receive the maximum 2 points if, in statute, applicants with a relationship to the victim beyond shared household, legal status, or by blood are eligible for victim compensation. States receive 1 point if, in statute, household members—regardless of blood or legal relationship—are eligible for victim compensation, but the state does not consider relationships beyond household members. States receive 0 points if, in statute, the state only considers relationships defined by blood or legal status.	2/2	Under the Division of Victim Services' Compensation Guidelines, the division makes associated victims eligible if they are “household members of victims” or “relatives of a victim.” These definitions include a wide range of relationships, including “dating relationships.” As Wyoming considers relationships to the victim beyond shared household, legal status, or by blood, Wyoming receives 2 points for this category.
Eligibility for survivors of victims: Witnesses	Many victim compensation programs limit who can access financial relief based on their relationship to a victim or a survivor. It is important that victim compensation programs recognize the impact of violence on witnesses and loved ones and that the state broadly defines who is considered a victim's loved one. States receive the maximum 1 point if, in statute, the state stipulates that all witnesses to harm are eligible to receive victim compensation. States receive 0.5 points if, in statute, the state only makes those who were under the age of 18 when they witnessed harm eligible to receive victim compensation. States receive 0 points if, in statute, the state does not make witnesses to harm eligible to apply for victim compensation.	0.5/1	Under the Division of Victim Services' Compensation Guidelines, the division makes associated victims eligible, including “children who witness violent crimes against adults.” Wyoming therefore receives 0.5 points for this category.
Eligibility for survivors of victims: Willing or obligated to pay	It is important that victim compensation programs recognize and explicitly include individuals who step up in the immediate aftermath of violence to fill financial gaps for victims and survivors. States receive the maximum 1 point if, in statute, the state codifies that a person who willingly paid for or was obligated to pay for expenses related to a victim's harm is eligible for compensation. States receive 0 points if, in statute, the state does not codify that a person who willingly paid for or was obligated to pay for expenses related to a victim's harm is eligible for compensation.	0/1	Wyoming Statute § 1-40-102(6) establishes the persons eligible for compensation and does not include persons who willingly paid for or were obligated to pay for expenses related to a victim's harm as eligible for compensation. Wyoming therefore receives 0 points for this category.

Experience with the process

States are evaluated based on the availability and amount of emergency awards and whether perspectives of individuals directly affected by violence are consulted or included in the administration of victim compensation awards.

Weighted score: 1.5/6

Multiplier: 1.5

Raw score: 1/4

Category	Points Awarded For	Evaluation	Explanation
Emergency awards	Most states use a reimbursement model to distribute victim compensation. Without immediate and up-front financial support from states, survivors risk experiencing undue financial hardship, which can compound the trauma of becoming a survivor. States should make emergency awards available to help alleviate these burdens. States receive a maximum 2 points if, in statute, the state codifies a process to determine which victim compensation applicants can receive an emergency, tentative, or expedited award to alleviate financial hardship, and the established limit for such an emergency award is equal to or above $3,750, after adjusting for the cost of living. States receive 1 point if, in statute, the state codifies an emergency award process, but the established limit for such an award is below $3,750, after adjusting for the cost of living. States receive 0 points if there is no codified process in statute for victim compensation applicants to receive an emergency award.	1/2	Wyoming Statute § 1-40-111 authorizes the division to make an emergency award if "the division determines undue hardship will result to the applicant if immediate payment is not made." Such an award is capped at $1,000. Adjusted for the cost of living in Wyoming, this is equivalent to $1,100.74. As this is below $3,750, Wyoming receives 1 point for this category.
Inclusion of victim, provider, and/or advocate perspectives	To meet survivors where they are, it is essential that victim compensation programs are trauma informed, extend compassion, and listen and learn from survivors' experiences. States can do so by including survivors in victim compensation program decisionmaking processes. States receive the maximum of 2 points if, in statute or regulations, the state requires at least one survivor to be included in the application review process or in advisory capacity to the review board. States receive 1 point if, in statute or regulations, the state requires at least one person with direct experience supporting survivors be included in the application review process or in an advisory capacity. States without this requirement receive 0 points.	0/2	Wyoming Statute § 1-40-104 establishes the victim services division inside the Wyoming office of the attorney general. As Wyoming Statute § 1-40 does not further establish in statute a requirement that the office consult with or take advisement from persons with lived experience as a victim or who work on behalf of victims, Wyoming receives 0 points for this category.
