Dem	Immediate Relief	Rising food prices are an emergency and families need help right now. The federal government would negotiate with the food industry to hold prices on basics like milk, bread, eggs, and chicken flat for two years in exchange for reduced tariffs and credit card fees, saving your family hundreds of dollars a year. This is about getting money back in your pocket today, not promises about tomorrow.	2.1%	91%
Dem	Kids and Families	No parent should have to choose between feeding their kids and paying rent. Families are being stretched too thin. The federal government would negotiate with the food industry to hold prices on basics like milk, bread, eggs, and chicken flat for two years in exchange for reduced tariffs and credit card fees, saving your family hundreds of dollars a year. Every child deserves a full plate at dinner.	2.0%	91%
Dem	Wages vs. Prices	Your paycheck hasn't kept up with your grocery bill. Working people are falling behind no matter how hard they work. The federal government would negotiate with the food industry to hold prices on basics like milk, bread, eggs, and chicken flat for two years in exchange for reduced tariffs and credit card fees, saving your family hundreds of dollars a year. You deserve to keep more of what you earn.	2.0%	90%
Dem	Republican Inaction	Republicans in Congress have done nothing while grocery prices keep climbing. They talk about inflation but won't lift a finger to help. The federal government would negotiate with the food industry to hold prices on basics like milk, bread, eggs, and chicken flat for two years in exchange for reduced tariffs and credit card fees, saving your family hundreds of dollars a year. At least someone has a plan.	2.0%	88%
Dem	Farmers and Consumers	Both farmers and families are getting squeezed while middlemen profit. Farmers deserve a fair price for what they grow, and you deserve a fair price at the register. The federal government would negotiate with the food industry to hold prices on basics like milk, bread, eggs, and chicken flat for two years in exchange for reduced tariffs and credit card fees, saving your family hundreds of dollars a year.	1.9%	87%
Dem	Corporate Greed	Food companies have been using inflation as an excuse to jack up prices and pad their bottom line. Enough is enough. The federal government would negotiate with the food industry to hold prices on basics like milk, bread, eggs, and chicken flat for two years in exchange for reduced tariffs and credit card fees, saving your family hundreds of dollars a year. It's time to put families before corporate profits.	1.8%	84%
Dem	Economic Stability	Out-of-control food prices make the whole economy less stable. When people spend more on groceries, they spend less everywhere else. The federal government would negotiate with the food industry to hold prices on basics like milk, bread, eggs, and chicken flat for two years in exchange for reduced tariffs and credit card fees, saving your family hundreds of dollars a year. Stable food prices mean a stronger economy for everyone.	1.8%	82%
Dem	Tariff Relief	President Trump's tariffs are driving up the cost of food and someone needs to stop his price increases. The federal government would negotiate with the food industry to hold prices on basics like milk, bread, eggs, and chicken flat for two years in exchange for reduced tariffs and credit card fees, saving your family hundreds of dollars a year. You shouldn't have to pay more because of the President's trade war.	1.7%	80%
Dem	Food Supply Chain	A handful of giant corporations control most of the food supply chain and they're the ones setting the prices you pay. The federal government would negotiate with the food industry to hold prices on basics like milk, bread, eggs, and chicken flat for two years in exchange for reduced tariffs and credit card fees, saving your family hundreds of dollars a year.	1.7%	79%
Dem	Cooperation	Food is too expensive and it's going to take everyone working together to fix it. The government and the private sector should both do their part. The federal government would negotiate with the food industry to hold prices on basics like milk, bread, eggs, and chicken flat for two years in exchange for reduced tariffs and credit card fees, saving your family hundreds of dollars a year.	1.7%	79%
Dem	Standing Up to Grocery Industry	Big grocery retailers are raking in record profits while you pay more every trip to the store. It's time to stand up to them. The federal government would negotiate with the food industry to hold prices on basics like milk, bread, eggs, and chicken flat for two years in exchange for reduced tariffs and credit card fees, saving your family hundreds of dollars a year.	1.6%	75%

Dem	Tariffs	Democrats say you should support them because they will lower the cost of groceries by ending Trump's tariffs and increasing imports of less expensive goods from other countries. These tariffs make everyday items more costly for American families. By removing these trade barriers, prices at the grocery store will drop, making food more affordable. This approach will help hard-working families save money on their weekly shopping and put more money back in their pockets.	1.4%	90%
Dem	Farms	Democrats say you should support them because they will lower the cost of groceries and food by supporting American farmers to grow more crops and increase supply. This plan will make food more affordable and reduce prices at the grocery store for hard-working Americans. Everyday essentials like milk, bread, and vegetables will become more accessible to people across the country, helping families save money on their weekly shopping bills.	1.3%	85%
Dem	Market Basket	Democrats say you should support them because they will lower the cost of groceries by negotiating with corporations to stop grocery prices from rising on many food staples. Big companies have been raising prices unfairly, making it harder for families to afford basic items. The government will work directly with these corporations to provide immediate relief for families and ensure that essential foods remain affordable for everyone across the country.	1.3%	81%
Dem	Gov Run Stores	Democrats say you should support them because they will lower the cost of groceries by having the government own and operate grocery stores in neighborhoods across America. These stores would offer a lower-cost food option for families who struggle to afford rising prices. By providing an alternative to expensive private stores, more Americans will have access to affordable food in their own communities, helping families save money on essential items.	0.4%	10%
